Just previous to commencing his discourse last Sunday

A GOOD MOVEMENT.

porning, one of our city pastors, Rev. W. D. Haley, renested that those of his congregation "who believed that the work of a pastor and a church extended beyond preaching and hearing" should remain at the close of the A large number of persons complied with the quest, and he then stated that he had called them together to lay before them a proposition for the perform-ance of a duty to society which be felt it was imperative for them as Christians to discharge. A committee of ladies had been appointed at the recent annual meeting, to whom was committed the disbursement of the charities of the church. In looking over the various claims which were made upon their sympathies, there was none which had impressed the committee and himself so which had a special with the wretched condition of many of the poor children of our city. A proposition had been made, in a way which seemed to mark it as a special providence, to gather these young pariahs from the streets and alleys, and to give them, free of charge, the common rudiments of education. He believed it was the best charity they could bestow, for it gave what must be beneficial; they were always liable to imposition in the relief of adults, but if they gave a child the alphabet, though there might be persons vile enough to trade a glass of whiskey for a child's primer. it was impossible that they could rob the children of the power to read the Bible which was thus conferred.

In reply to an inquiry, he said that if Congress and the city should provide the most ample accommodation for every child, there would still exist this necessity for Christian missionary action, for, in consequence of neglect, drunkenness, and oftentimes of meritorious poverty, there would be the understrature of society, in which flourish the foul weeds of violence, dissipation, profanity, and rowdyism, which, if anything ever did, would at last choke the thriving grain of our republic. He wanted to go in the name and spirit of Jesus to those who, first feeling the gospel of fraternity in a gift of needed clothing, or a smoking dinner when half dead with hunger, would then be prepared for hearing the Gospel of Christ. He implored his hearers to make sacrifices in order that, comparatively poor and small as they were, they might still feel they were doing their duty. He did not ask them to give to enterprises of question-able importance; what they gave would go directly to the poor, and would n. t be filtered through the salaries of secretaries and agents to distant localities. The work was right under their own supervision, and its results would be in an exact ratio to their efforts.

Several gentlemen spoke in warm terms of approbation of the plan; amongst others Dr. Wallace mentioned that, in his position as a member of the city council, he had cognizance of the fact that from eight hundred to a thousand children had applied for admission to the public schools, and had been refused for want of accommodation, and it was fair to infer that there was an equal number who had not applied, but who might be looked up, and, by being educated, be prepared for usefulness instead of growing up in vagabondage.

We are glad to hear that since Sunday such as surances have been received as have justified Rev. Mr. Haley in employing a teacher and in making the necessary preparations for carrying his plan into operation. Several gentlemen and ladies, not belonging to the congr. gation, have expressed a desire to contribute means for the support of so laudable an undertaking, and, in addition to this, a prominent capitalist who belongs to the Church under Mr. Haley's pastorate, has signified his willingness to build and present to the mission a handsome edifice in the spring if, during the winter, it shall be found that the enterprise is successful. We presume that the Rev. W. D. Haley, whose address is 371 Third street, will be very thankful for any aid that may be forwarded to him from any of our readers.

PRESENTATION AND LECTURE.

By request of many citizens, Rev. Dr. O'Toole repeated last evening, at Philharmonic Hall, his introductory lecture, delivered some time since before the Catholic Beneficial Total Abstinence Association of the District of Columbia. The association marched in procession from their hall, on F street, and when they reached the lecture-room found some difficulty in reaching the part of the hall designated for them owing to the immence concourse of citizens, of both sexes, who had assembled at that early hour. The platform was occupied by the officers of the society, sev eral of the reverend clergy of the city, the committee of arrangements for the presentation, and by many prominent citizens of the District.

The lecturer occupied the same ground taken in his former lecture, urging the virtue of temperance as en joined by the revealed law and sanctioned by every principle of Christian duty. Dr. O'Toole acquitted himself with great credit, and was frequently greeted with rapturous appliance.

Immediately after the lecture Mr. J. J. Kane, holding in his hand a complimentary purse of $150, delivered the following address:

REVEREND PRESIDENT: The pleasing duty devolves on REVEREND PAISIDENT: The pleasing duty devolves on me of representing the association of which you are both founder and president, in the closing ceremonies of this evening's meeting. These ceremonies are omitted, not unintentionally in the regular programme for the evening; and, if I except the general allusion to them in our printed advertisements, are now, for the first time, even to you, reverend sir, revealed beyond the immediate circle of our own association. We have all long desired circle of our own association. We have all long desired to present to you, reverend sir, some tangible testimonial of the gratitude and appreciation with which we have watched and participated in your untiring exertions in the holy cause to which our association is pledged from the moment (some three years ago) when you imparted to your twelve associates a portion of that spirit of temperance reform on principles of conscience which the illustrious Father Mathew breathed into your youthful heart, far away in the green island of your birth, to this present hour, when you need but cast your eye around this hall to witness the living fruits of your apostolic labors. We, reverend sir, our wives and our children, are the immediate beneficiaries of your never-tiring zeal. You immediate beneficiaries of your never-tiring zeal. You have blessed with peace, and happiness, and plenty, the homes in which before, in but too many instances, dissension, and misery, and destitution reigned in their most repulsive forms. But this was not the limit to which your zeal and your hopes in the organization of our as-sociations were restricted. You took a higher and a broader view of the good that may be achieved by the combined efforts of voluntary associations united for the promotion of one of the cardinal virtues, especially if directed in a spirit of subordination to that revealed law which comprehends within its scope the responsi-bilities of man and the virtues to which, in every vicisitude of life, it is his duty to aspire. In that spirit, reverend sir, you have made us what we are to-night; to that spirit we are indebted for our unparalleled success, and in the faithful adherence to that spirit, acting upon an enlightened conscience, we may look forward to still greater triumphs until your temperance army shall become the pride and the beast of the federal metropolis. Guided by this spirit to which I allude, and inspired by its heaven-born influ-ences, you have looked beyond the blessings dispensed to the homes and the fire-sides of the members individual-ly to the public benefit, not indirectly, but directly, flow-ing from your efforts to secrets a large. Society, its vely to the public benefit, not indirectly, but directly, flowing from your efforts to society at large. Society, in the sense in which I use the term, is but the aggregate of the individuals who compose it. If they are virtuous and sober and intelligent, the virtues which they practise individually will be reflected upon the society of which they are members, and good order, intelligence, and sobriety will characterize the entire community. The civil power will then find its greatest strength, and the laws framed for the repression of crime their most powerful sanctions, in the general virtue and intelligence which underlie the social structure. Aware of this fundamental principle of political science, your ambition has been to make good citizens by combatting the vices which invariably and most frequently make bud ones, and, above all, the monmost frequently make had ones, and, above all, the mon-ster and master vice of intemperance. You have thus, reverend sir, ranked yourself among the public benefac-tors of the great city which bears the name of the immortal Washington, and already the press and the people of Washington speak of your labors in a spirit of grateful appreciation. It is in this spirit, reverend sir, that I now appreciation. It is in this spirit, reverend sir, that I now stand before you as the honored representative of the Catholic Beneficial Total Abstinence Association of the District of Columbia. They desire to express, through their humble organ, their esteem for you personally, and their gratitude and thanks for your successful efforts, aided as you have been by your faithful, able, and self. THE WORK OF THE TEACHER.—We have received from association in organizing and watching over an association which has proved no less beneficial to its members than useful and creditable to the community at large. I now, reverend sir, in the name and on behalf of the Catholic Boneficial Total Abstinence Association of the District of Columbia, present you with a complimentary purse of one hundred and fifty dollars, to be appropriated to the purchase of a horse, which the association has learned you need at this time, and beg your acceptance thereof.

The Nork of the Trachers' Association at large, I now, reversed sir, in the name and on behalf of the Catholic Boneficial Total Abstinence Association of teacher, and the agency of the National Teachers' Association in elevating the character and advancing the interests of the profession of teaching.

The STRAMER ABORIC, the sailing of which was amounced in the Union of yesterday morning, met with an ac-

This was Mr. Kane's first appearance as a speaker, but spoke as follows:

spoke as follows:

Gentlemen: Returning the other day from a sick-call, and driving pretty briskly the very horse which your purse makes my own this evening, I was halled by a man running out of breath, "I am glad you've got him, sir, I was down for a dollar." What is this for, said I, as he handed me a dollar. "I am sorry it wasn't in time," was his reply. He thought you had already bought me a horse, and regretted his subscription was too late. It was, however, too soon for your plans, and thus what you hoped would be an agreeable surprise is no surprise at all at this minute. But it is very agreeable, indeed. Is it for the money saske? Well, there is no use in what is called "Bancomic," where money is concerned. Few would be at this minute. But it is very agreeable, indeed. Is it for the money seake? Well, there is no use in what is called "Bancombe," where money is concerned. Few would be credited if they claimed an utter indifference about it.
Money is a good thing—very useful on this planet of ours—not at all to be despised. The only difficulty I know about it enhances its value when we get it—that is, it is hard to get and hard to keep. But, gentleme, apart from this and before this, your present this evening is very agreeable, because it is a substantial token of regard,
and an ununistakable proof of your hearty co-operation in the cause and in the interest of temperance. I thank you, gentlemen, cordially, and I must beg my young friend, your spokesman, to accept a special expression of my thanks for the kind and flattering terms in which he has made this presentation. He has given us an accurate picture of the benefits our society is capable of conferring upon the Metropolis. He has not overdrawn this sketch. But I assure you he has overdrawn another picture. In speaking of my claims upon the society and my title to this munificent gift, his kindness and his enthusiasm for the cause we advocate have led him away.
And I would beg leave to remind him and the society that my efforts are but attempts to fulfil what I regard as the importative demand of duty; and if they be anything more, I am proud of the consciousness that I deem myself fully repaid by every happiness that is brought to the hearths and to the hearts of the members, or by the thought that I am allowed to share the credit of any movement that tends to the peace and order of our city. And if at any time I would plume myself on being magnanimous in such efforts, I could not relieve the money of the consolution.

All of the money is a good thing—respondence. I shall mean to the start of the money is a good thing—respondence.

By all the money is a good thing—respondence.

By all the money is a good thing—respondence.

By all the money is a good thing—re piness that is brought to the hearths and to the hearts of the members, or by the thought that I am allowed to share the credit of any movement that tends to the peace
and order of our city. And if at any time I would plume
myself on being magnanimous in such efforts, I could not reliaquish my right to claim that they were entirely above the suspicion of self-interest. I must believe, then, gentlemen, that when you and your fellow-members wished to gratify your own gencrosity, it came casy to my young friend to establish a title for me, where you all wished to recognise one. And so do I explain to myself the kind, flattering terms in which he has spoken of my efforts. For the rest, mistaken though he he as to my claims, I would not have him, or any one of you, gentlemen, or any one in the society, or any one out of the society, mistaken as to my gratifule. I accept your weighty purse, gentlemen, gratefully, as a timely and the society, mistaken as to my gratifule. I accept your weighty purse, gentlemen, gratefully, as a timely and useful present that will help to furnish me with increased facilities to serve yourselves. I accept it with, I trust, an honest pride, as identifying me in the fullest sympathy with the hardy sons of toil. I accept it, and let it be a new bond between me and the society; let it be a mutual encouragement to perseverance. Yes, gentlemen, I accept it, above all, as an encouragement to persevere, as a plain proof of your carnestness in the cause of temper-ance, and a demonstration to your fellow-citizens that your society is a reality in their midst. Again, gentlemen, I thank you sincerely, and with pride and grati-tude I humbly beg to hold myself devoted anew gener-ously to your service in this or any other good cause

THE WASHINGTON THEATRE.

The benefit of Mr. Burton last night was in every sense of the word a brilliant success. It was attended by an immense audience, consisting of two thousand people, "be the same more or less' —that is, including those who tried to get in, and were unable to do so. In the character of Guy Goodluck, the most unfortunate man in the world, he had the good fortune to elicit the almost incessant plaudits of the audience; and as Joe Baggs and Sam Slap. Madam Vanderpants, and in the last play of "The Mummy," he kept them laughing till they could laugh no more. Burton does not dare to be as funny as he can lest he should be the death of somebody. He was ably s istained by Mrs. Hughes, Mr. Dawson, and the rest of the company.

To-night will be given the effective drama termed

The Three Degrees of Loafing," in which Mr. Dawson will appear as Sam Slap, and Mrs. Tayleure as Betty. The ent rtainments will conclude with the farce of "Jem To-morrow night, being the last night of the dramatic season, Mr. Dawson will take a benefit; and being a great favorite with the Washington public, it cannot be doubted but he will have a crowded house.

On next Monday night the New Orleans English Opera Company are to appear in Rossini's beautiful opera, The Barber of Seville. This company is highly spoken of by the press, and we doubt not will meet a cordial reception from our music-loving citizens.

PREPARING FOR THE WINTER CAMPAIGN.—We notice that all our principal hotels have been availing themselves of the temporary cessation of travel during the recess of Congress to make more ample provision for the influx of visitors which will soon begin to throng the national metropolis. Messrs. Willard have been making extensive additions to their establishment, of which we have previously taken occasion to speak. In Brown's Hetel the work of painting, papering, carpeting, and refitting with new furniture has been going on until everything wears that aspect of neatness, comfort, and taste so desirable to the traveller. In addition to their former accommodations, they have enlarged their boundaries by the addition of fifteen beautiful rooms, in the upper stories of the Messrs. Galt's new building, which are furnished, and some of them already occupied. The ladies' parlor consists of three rooms thrown into one, and respectively papered with red, green, and blue, with furniture to match. The gentlemen's parlor has also been entirely refitted and refurnished. In this establishment there are now more than two hundred rooms, and every attention is paid to the comfort of the guests.

The National Hotel has been undergoing a similar renovating process, and is now extensively patronized. During the last season, since it has been re-opened under the present management, this hotel has been as free from disease as any one in the city, and no one need fear a recurrence of that unfortunate epidemic which two or three years ago spread such dismay among all its denizens. There are more than three hundred rooms in this establishment, and its proprietors are justly considered favorites with the travelling public.

Kirkwoods', always proverbially neat, sustains its high reputation, and effers the visitor the conveniences and comforts of a home, without the care and trouble of housekeeping. It is, therefore, extensively patronized by permanent residents, as well as by travellers.

The United States Hotel has not remained stationary amid these general changes, but is as comfortable as any of the larger establishments. Within a few weeks past there have been various alterations made, by the widening of passages, and in other ways, so as to facilitate the convenience of the guests in going to and from their rooms. The house has also been repainted and put in first rate order. If there is anything of which Washingtonians may well be proud, it is the excellence of their hotels.

Tax Titles .- Another case of importance to the owners of property under tax titles was decided yesterday by the circuit court. It was that of Mr. Campbell to recover certain property held by other parties under these titles. The court decided that the sale of this property was irregular, and that Mr. Campbell's right was unquestionable. By this decision the principle is settled, notwithstanding the postponement of the case which was put upon trial at the commencement of the present term.

Concern.—Our music-loving friends will be glad to learn that Gustav Satter, Actomias, and Mad. Johnson propose a concert in this city next week at Philharmonic ced in the Union of yesterday morning, met with an ac-cident which will detain her for several days. In windto judge from his fine voice, modest yet impressive address, and sensible discourse, it will not be his last. On er's propeller, and caused considerable disarrangement of resuming his seat Dr. O'Toole again took the stand, and the machinery. A number of hands have been employed in repairing the damage.

Paor. Woon—Dear Sir: Your Hair Restorative has done much good in this part of the country. My hair has been slightly diminishing for several years, caused, I suppose, from a slight burn when I waquite an infant. I have been using your Hair Restorative for six weeks and i flud that I have a fine head of hair now growing, after having used all other remedies known to no effect. I think it the most valuable remedy now extant, and advise all who are afflicted that way to use your remedy.

You can publish this if you think proper. Yours, &c.

STEAM MACHINERY FOR SCREW PRO-PELLER SLOOP-OF-WAR AT THE UNI-TED STATES NAVY-YARD GOSPORT,

Navy Department,

Navy Department, October 27, 1885.

SEALED PROPOSALS, endorsed "Proposal for Steam Machinery for Serew Propeller Slosp-of-War," will be recoved at this department until 3 o'clock, p. m., of the 20th of November must for the complete construction of the steam machinery and appendages, either direct acting or geared engines, as the bidder may consider preferable, and placing the same on board the screw shop-of-war building at the United States may yard at Gosport, Virginia, in accordance with the following conditions:

The offers must be for a specific sum for putting the whole in successful operation; growt include all patent fees, and the department will require a release from the proprietors of any patentod article or arrangements used in or about the matchinery, and must state the time in which the work will be completed, and must be accompanied by the usual guarantee required by law.

The mane of the establishment in which the work is to be executed must be stated. The details of the design and arrangement of the machinery will be left with the party whose proposition may be accepted as Combining the greatest number of advantages, keeping in view cost, simplicity of construction, realizess of access for adjustment when in operation, and not being subject to deratigement in the working parts, it being the object of the department to prosure machinery which can develop great power when required so as to insure high speed for as many days as possible, while at the same time thay will be able to propel the vessel at a moderate speed with great economy of facel, so that long voyages may be performed with one supply of coal.

With this view, the department will expect the bidders to guaranty the results proposed to be accomplished by their plans, and to specify those results under the following heads:

1st. The amount of horse power when the bidders to guaranty the results proposed to be accomplished by their plans, and to specify the order of the propeller.

The consumption of coals per horse power per hear must less than 500 gallons per day; and the tools and doplicate pieces necessary and satisfactory for an efficient ornising steam sloop-of-war, must be included in the proposition, and a list of them must be furnished.

The wood and carpenter work (except the boring out the deadwood for the shaft) necessary to anigat the vessel for the reception of the marchinery, sollers, and appendages, will be provided at the expense of the Navy Department, and it will permit the use of such ascellations are in any law for hosting the beary machinery on board.

For the accommodation of the entire steam machinery and the fuel, there will be allowed in the body of the ship the entire space under the spar deck, commencing at 15 feet about the mainimast, and thence extending forward a distance of 56 feet; but if general engines are used an additional length of three feet will be admitted.

Within this space it is expected to carry coal for five days' steaming at the maximum speed.

In the specifications, the daily consumption of fuel will be stated; also the weight of the machinery, coal, bollers, water in them, shaft, propoller, and appendages, with tools and spers work, all of which must not exceed 406 tons of 2,240 pounds; but if geared engines are used an additional weight of 20 tons will be allowed.

The distance from the after side of the mainmast to the after side of the forward stern post will be about 73 feet, and the distance between the forward and the after side of the mainmast to the after side of the function of the server feet. The depth rom the load water line to the top of the keel under the propoler will be 12 feet 1 inch.

The proposal must be accompanied by full specifications and general drawings, having the position of the centre of gravity of the machinery, bollers, &c., marked on them, giving also the capacity of the steam cylinders, pressure of steam, area of foot and delivery valves, and of air pump and outhoard delivery valves, space for steam above the water line of the bollers, the ire and grate surfice,

PROPOSALS FOR SHAFTS.

PROPOSALS FOR SHAFTS.

U.S. CAPITOL EXTENSION AND WASHINGTON AGENOLICE OFFICE.

Washington, September 30th, 1858.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at this office until the Louth day of December next, at noon, for formishing, on the grounds of the Extension of the Capitol, one hundred Shafts for the columns of the Extension of the Capitol, one hundred Shafts for the columns of the Extension of the Capitol, one hundred Shafts for the columns of the Extension of the Lapton of the University of the Capitol Extension of said torus to the top of the upper astragal.

The diameter of the forms or bottom piece of shaft to be three feet seven and five-eighths inches; the diameter of the shaft above the base to be three feet, and at the neck below the capital two feet six-and-one-eighth inches; and the diameter of the upper astragal to be two feet eleven-and-seven-eighths inches. These are the next dimensions of the work when flashed.

All the blocks to be scabbled round to dimensions, and to be free from all defects which would make blemishes in the flashed columns. The above shafts to be of white American marble, similar in color, grain, and composition to that used in the exterior of the Capitol Extension, which comes from near Lee, Massachusetts.

Every proposal should be accompanied with a block at least one cable foot in size, as a specimen of the marble effered. This spetimen will be submitted to proper chemical and mechanical tests before being accepted for the work.

The proposals and state the time within which the marble will be delivered, and should be accompanied by a written guarantee, signed by one or more responsible persons, to the effect that be or they undertake that the bidder or bidders will, if his or their bids be accepted, enter into an obligation within the days, with good and sufficient securities, for the completion of the work undertaken; said guarantee to be a cacompanied by the certificate of the United States of Betric guarantee.

The United States reserves the right to reject any or all bids not deemed advantageous, and to make other arrangements for procuring he marble.

Proposals will be received for furnishing the shafts either in single clocks or in blocks of not less than four feet in length, and the number of shafts offered in single blocks or in pieces, respectively, should pe stated.

Proposals will be opened in this office at noon of the 4th Decenext, in the presence of bidders who may choose to be present.
